6. Orlando climate / Area attractions

July Weather

Average daytime high	92° F (33° C)
Average nighttime low	73° F (22° C)
Average monthly rainfall	8.1 inches (20 cm)

Orlando has a warm and humid subtropical climate, and there are two major seasons each year. One of those seasons is hot and rainy, lasting from May until October (roughly coinciding with the Atlantic hurricane season). The area's warm and humid climate is caused primarily by its low elevation and its position relatively close to the Tropic of Cancer, and much of its weather is affected by the movement of the Gulf Stream.

During the height of Orlando's very humid summer season, temperatures rarely fall below 70° F (21° C), and daytime highs average in the 90s (32-37° C). Although the city rarely records temperatures over 100° F (38° C), extreme humidity often pushes the heat index to over 110° F (45° C). During these months, strong afternoon thunderstorms occur almost daily.

The average annual rainfall in Orlando is 50.1 inches (128 cm), most of it occurring in the period from June to September.

Orlando is best known for the many tourist attractions in the area, in particular the nearby Walt Disney World Resort, located in Lake Buena Vista about 20 miles south of Orlando, that features four amusement parks. Other notable area attractions include Sea World and Universal Studios Orlando, also featuring amusement parks. The region sees an estimated 52 million tourists a year.

Orlando has the second largest number of hotel rooms in the country (after Las Vegas, Nevada), and is one of the busiest American cities for conferences and conventions with the Orange County Convention Center, the country's second largest in square footage. It is also known for its wide array of golf courses, with numerous courses available for any level of golfer.

Visit the Attractions page under the Travel tab on 2008wyc.com for more information on things to do in the Orlando area.
